Like Republican Predecessor He Is for Federal Telephone and Telegraph Lines

MAY RECOMMEND THIS IN REPORT

Has Been Subject of Deep Study by Officials of the Administration

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Postmaster General Burleson proposes to "follow up" the recommendations made by his republican predecessor, Frank H. Hitchcock, that the government own all telegraph and telephone lines. It was learned today that Burleson is considering inclusion of such a recommendation in his annual report, now in process of preparation.

The administration officials have given the whole subject of government ownership of all wires deep study, was admitted by Representative Lewis of Maryland, an expert on transportation and interstate commerce problems.

Postmaster General Burleson himself "declined to discuss the matter at this particular time."

Irrespective of any recommendation by Postmaster General Burleson, Representative Lewis will introduce a bill within the next few weeks proposing government ownership of all interstate telephone and telegraph lines.

The Maryland representative has gathered data from European countries. He favors the systems in Holland and Germany, where the government controls all lines, but places their operation under the various states.

DOG AFTER RAT TURNS ON GAS WHICH NEARLY KILLS KNOTHE FAMILY

A pet dog in pursuit of a rat nearly caused the death of Mrs. John H. Knothe and her two small children last night at their home, 512 King street, when he brushed against the gas stove and turned on a jet leading to the oven. The opportune arrival of Mr. Knothe probably saved the lives of his family.

The gas was discovered when Mr. Knothe returned to his home late last night. As he opened the front door, he says the fumes of gas nearly overpowered him. He opened a window as quickly as possible.

As Mr. Knothe was afraid to light a match, there was no light in the house. He rushed to his wife's bedside, shaking her. She was not overcome but in a condition to lead to the belief that she would have been within a short time. The two children were awakened after some difficulty.

After a search it was found that the gas was escaping from the jet in the gas oven of the range. The dog was still on watch near the oven.

HEIR TO MILLIONS HELD FOR STABBING

Herman Oelrichs Who Has $30,000,000 in Own Right Out on $1,000 Bond

CHARGE IS FELONIOUS ASSAULT

He Is Alleged to Have Stabbed Pretty Young Girl on Midnight Joy-ride

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Herman Oelrichs, with $30,000,000 in his own right and said to be, next to Vincent Astor, the richest young man in America, was held today in $1,000 bonds for a hearing October 7 on a charge of felonious assault on pretty 19 year old Lucile Singleton. He is alleged to have stabbed the young woman while on a joy ride.

Young Oelrichs was in a very chastened mood when he appeared today in Magistrate Frank's court. He was accompanied by Attorney Martin Taylor.

Oelrichs, one of his lawyers said today, will deny absolutely that he stabbed Miss Singleton.

After many hours' investigation, during which the police sought proof that the central figure of the midnight joy ride was young Oelrichs masquerading under the name of a former fellow collegian, D. M. Claghorn of Tacoma, Wash., the young millionaire was trapped in Miss Singleton's apartment and arrested. He spent two hours in a cell at the Mulberry station before his mother appeared and caused his release on $5,000 bond.

CANAL UNHURT BY BIG EARTHQUAKE

Whole Zone Is Severely Shaken but Machinery and Gatun Locks Are Safe

PANAMA CITY, Oct. 2.—"That the damage to the Gatun locks is nominal," was the report today of Lieutenant Colonel Siebert on the result of an earthquake last night. "The machinery is unharmed and a superficial slide will be removed within twelve hours."

"Practically no damage was done to the canal," declared Colonel Goe-thal's secretary.

Army engineers early today made a thorough inspection of the Gatun locks to determine if possible any damage had been done by the earthquake, which rocked houses during the night and alarmed the entire population. The disturbance was felt the entire length of the canal.

THIRD WAR IN THE BALKANS IMPENDS

Greeks Mobilizing and Declaration of War Against Turkey Is Expected

BULGARS WILL HELP MONTENEGRO

Servia and Montenegro Would Join Hellenes in Case of Trouble

VIENNA, Oct. 2.—After a year of almost continuous fighting in the Balkans, military men today were certain that a third war is imminent in the near east. Greek troops today were mobilizing at several points on the frontier and all reservists have been called to colors by King Constantine. A declaration of war against Turkey is expected at Athens, according to dispatches.

Bulgaria will take the field with Turkey, following the provisions of the new treaty. It is regarded as probably that Servia and Montenegro will line up with Greece, and thus the Balkan war will continue with a new alignment.

A dispatch from Belgrade today said that the Servians have defeated the Albanians in several engagements and now feel confident that they will drive the mountaineers from the border.

PHILLIES, 8; GIANTS, 6

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The famous protested game between the Giants and the Phillies, played at Philadelphia, August 30, was pulled out, put on the griddle and warmed over today and the result remains just the same as it stood when Umpire Brennan broke up the party a month ago. About 2,000 fans went without their lunch, or ate in the grand stand while watching the Giants try to turn a delayed victory. The final score, it may be announced after a month's delay, is: Phillies, 8; Giants, 6.

MAY SEND TARIFF TO WILSON TONIGHT

Will Go to President Not Later Than Friday Declares Senator Simmons

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—"The tariff bill will go to the president not later than Friday; it may go to the White house tonight," declared Senator Simmons today, prior to the senate session which considered the conference report on the measure.

"I do not believe there will be any of the opposition to the adoption of this measure that the public seems to think there will be," Simmons insisted.

Despite the senator's optimism, many members said today they did not believe the bill could be polished off in time to reach the White house for the president's signature earlier than Saturday.

The vote of the senate democratic caucus of 33 to 6 to sustain the conference report and recede from the Clarke amendment, taxing cotton futures dissipated threatened democratic insurgency today. The only obstacles to quick agreement on the bill in the senate were protracted republican opposition and a final decision to eliminate cotton futures legislation from the measure.

When the conference report was called up, Senator Simmons asked consent to vote on it at 6 o'clock. Poindexter objected and Simmons requested that he would repeat his request later.

"If there is any possibility of securing a vote tonight, the senate will remain in session," he declared, refusing to consent to postponement of the vote until tomorrow.

SEES NO DEFICIT FOR WATER PLANT

C. W. Dickinson Claims that Plant Will Be $42,652 to the Good Instead of Behind

NO INTEREST CHARGE IS NEEDED

Declares that $42,750 Is a Needless Charge in Estimate Which Found Deficit

That instead of a deficit of $31,000 in the annual operation of the new water plant, the city will be $42,652 to the good, is the statement of C. W. Dickinson, in an article made public today. Mr. Dickinson finds several errors in the estimates by which the conclusion of a $31,000 deficit was reached.

That the city plans to get water at cost, and that therefore the charge of $42,750 as interest to be deducted from the yearly earnings of the plant is unnecessary, is Mr. Dickinson's chief contention.

Mr. Dickinson also insists that the depreciation charge made against the plant is too high, and that the hydrant rental earnings should be increased by $11,902.

Mr. Dickinson's statement follows: Editor, La Crosse Tribune, City.

Dear Sir:

I have been meditating about The Leader-Press editorial of the 16th inst. upon "City Water Works as a Business Proposition," and the newspaper comments upon the same that have appeared since. I heartily agree with the sentiments expressed that the water department should be run upon strict business principles and the moneys expended should be strictly accounted for and the books accurately show the various subdivisions of the water works department for which the money is spent, but I find myself a flat-footed heretic in regard to some of the applications of business principles to the water works department.

No reason for interest.

For instance, I find under the head of "Maintenance and Operation Charges" an item "Interest on $950,000.00 at 4 1/2 per cent, $42,750.00." I am wholly unable to find any reason for such a charge as this against our water works plant.

Any good business man will charge up against his investment in his business a reasonable rate of interest because his business should return him an earning beyond a reasonable interest that would be earned by, say, a bond investment, otherwise, in a limited sense, his business is not returning him any profit. He feels that he had better close out his business, put his money back in bonds and be relieved of the burden of carrying on the business. He is running his business as a money-making proposition. The interest that he charges up, however, is in fact a profit over the expense of conducting his business and this must be kept in mind in considering this charge.

The reasoning utterly fails in my judgment when applied to a municipally owned institution, such as is the water plant. The people (through the municipality) have established this plant for the purpose of getting water at cost. It is not intended to make any money or to earn any interest whatever. The imposition of this 4 1/2 per cent charge would be for the citizens to take 4 1/2 per cent of their pockets in the way of interest that they may put it back in the way of profit. This entire charge of $42,750.00 should be cancelled in the statement, and when done the entire alleged annual deficit of $31,000.00 is wiped out and the earning stand $11,750 to the good.

I also find a depreciation charge at three per cent at $28,500.00. A depreciation charge is a proper charge at some figure made by a business man upon his investment so as to keep his book values in accord with the supposed true value of his plant. For it is assumed that there is a depreciation in the physical integrity of the plant that some time will have to be made good outside of ordinary repairs and the earnings of the business must be sufficient to cover such theoretical depreciation before the business is returning any profit.

Now, the citizens have a right to demand of the municipality that the water plant be kept up to the highest state of efficiency for service, but the charge for depreciation at three per cent is a purely hypothetical one in this case. A depreciation charge must be treated in each case according to the nature and use of the plant and there may be a very wide gap between a theoretical depreciation and the actual facts in the case. I have been trying to get at some clues that would indicate to some extent the actual depreciation in our own plant, and I find these figures on the books.

Depreciation Small.

The total cost of new equipment on the old plant from its inception in 1878 was $614,380.55, and the value of the old plant in the Leader-Press statement is placed at $550,000.00, or a total depreciation in 35 years of $64,380.00; or an annual average depreciation of $1,839.72, or a little less than .3 of 1 per cent.

FIND IRONWORKER AFTER LONG HUNT

George Davis, Alleged Dynamiter, Confesses Wholesale Destruction Plot

A UNION OFFICIAL IS ARRESTED

Harry Jones Captured on Charges Made by Davis in His Confession

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—An elaborate confession of dynamite conspiracy and actual destruction of bridges and buildings was made public by the federal authorities today following the arrest of George E. Davis here and the arrest in Indianapolis of Harry Jones, the new secretary-treasurer of the International Union of Ironworkers.

The statement made by Davis, which caused the arrest of Jones on the charge of having sent him money to pay for dynamiting jobs, told also of a price having been put on the heads of Attorney Walter Drew of the Erectors' association, and Detective William J. Burns.

Taken Three Weeks Ago.

Davis was first apprehended three weeks ago in Pittsburgh, by Detective Foster of Louisville, who has been working for several years on the dynamite cases.

One sensational statement credited to Davis is that he had been selected to head a gang of fifteen dynamiters assigned to blow up every non-union building they could find in the country. The confession states that this plan was conceived while the McNamaras were on trial in Los Angeles and was designed to show that the McNamaras were not doing the dynamiting.

The confession sets forth that the plan was cut short by the action of the McNamaras in pleading guilty.

Arrest Union Secretary.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 2.—Harry Jones, international secretary-treasurer of the iron workers' union, was arrested at noon today on the charge of conspiring to transport explosives unlawfully, the same charge on which thirty-eight of his fellow unionists were convicted here last December. He was implicated in Davis' confession.

Jones is a new figure in the case. He formerly was financial secretary of New York local No. 40, of the ironworkers. He was elected international secretary-treasurer at the convention here last January.

During the federal investigation and trial, an unsuccessful search was made for Davis. In his confession he alleged the union kept him "under cover."

His appearance at this time is said to be due to a row with the Pittsburgh local over a $26 initiation fee, a few weeks ago. Davis was working without a union card. Business Agent Gallentine of Pittsburgh ordered Davis off the job or pay the initiation fee. Davis asked for time, and being refused, he got "sore."

Robert Foster, detective for the National Electors' association, secured this confession from Davis the day after he was fired off the union job.

Jones was accused by Davis of aiding the dynamiting by sending money to him.

STARTS CONTEST OF FATHER'S WILL

August Beach Claims Parent Who Left Him Five Dollars Violated Promise

August Beach of Seaforth, Minn., through his attorneys, Morris & Hartwell, today filed objections to the probate of the will of his father, the late William Beach of this city.

The bulk of the estate which is valued at about $10,000, is divided between the children of William Beach, with the exception that August Beach is cut off with $5. The will says this was done on account of a lawsuit the father had with the son some years ago.

Mr. August Beach claims that until he was thirty-one years of age he helped on the father's farm without pay and finally sued, receiving $1,450 and as part of the settlement the father agreed that when he died the son August should receive the same share of his property as the other children.

The son in his objections also sets up that the father was unduly influenced in making his will by other children.

FORGETS NAME OF BRIDE

GOLDEN, Cal., Oct. 2.—James S. Bracken, 73, of Pittsburg, applied for a marriage license at the county clerk's office here, but was unable to give the name of his prospective bride. He proposed that he be granted the license saying he would fill in the lady's name when he got to his hotel in Denver, where he had a memorandum of her identity. The clerk refused and Bracken left. Today he returned with Miss Lola Crowell of Kansas City, and they were granted a license.

NAB CHINAMAN FOR SELLING LIQUOR

Hoay Lee, Proprietor of Chop Suey House, Sold Beer Without Local or Government Licenses

Hoay Lee, Chinaman, proprietor of a chop suey house at 124 South Third street, was arrested last night by the La Crosse police charged with selling beer without a license.

The man, allege the police, did not bring the liquid to his patrons from a saloon, but kept an ice box, well filled, and was transacting the business for himself.

Bottles of the liquor, partly condensed, were taken by the police, together with the names of people who have purchased bottled beer there.

It is possible that the case may be turned over to the government for prosecution in view of the fact that the man had no government license.

TESTIFIES THAT NO WATER WAS IN MAN'S LUNGS

Blow on Head Possibly Delivered by Fist Blamed as Cause of His Death

WITNESSES TELL OF THE FIGHT

Saloon Proprietor Says that Rye Did Not Seem Badly Hurt in Fight but Was Angry

That Thomas Rye, whose body was found floating yesterday afternoon in Isle La Plume slough, was dead before his body entered the water, was the testimony of Dr. A. Gunderson at the inquest this afternoon, following a post mortem examination conducted by himself and Dr. K. E. Flynn.

Dr. Gunderson's testimony created a sensation at the inquest. He said that a blow on the head from some blunt instrument, possibly a fist, had caused death, and that there was no water in the lungs or stomach of the victim. Bad hemorrhages, he said, were found beneath the skull.

The state is now working on the theory that the body may have been found and thrown in the Isle La Plume slough. The testimony of the physicians has exploded the suicide by drowning theory.

District Attorney D. S. Law, following testimony from three witnesses at the inquest over the death of Thomas Rye, aged 73, whose body was found in the slough back of Isle La Plume yesterday afternoon, today ordered a post mortem examination of the body by Doctors R. E. Flynn and A. Gunderson.

Rye disappeared following a row in George Durhammer's saloon, 1410 South Fifth street, Sunday night.

The physicians started work this afternoon. The scalp of the unfortunate man will be removed to determine the effects of a blow alleged to have been struck by Nick Hefti and the lungs will be examined to determine whether or not the man was dead when his body entered the water of the slough.

The result of the examination of the body by the physicians will be the most important piece of evidence to be introduced before the coroner's jury. If no water is found in the lungs of Rye the suicide theory will be undoubtedly be abandoned and further evidence sought as to just what the old man did after the row at the saloon.

Nick Hefti was arrested by the police at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and is being held pending the verdict of the coroner's jury.

Fourteen witnesses were subpoenaed for the examination this morning and a jury consisting of Harry Newburg, D. Jehlen, Sebastian Amburger, Edgar Kroner, George Herken and George H. Berger, is hearing the testimony before Coroner Herman Langstadt.

Father Not Depressed.

Henry Rye, aged 22 years, son of the dead man, was the first witness called and testified to a visit he paid his aged father Sunday afternoon. Stories to the effect that the elder Mr. Rye had been despondent for some time were denied by the son who said that his father was in the best of health and spirits Sunday. He testified that his father had roomed alone at 1413 South Fifth street. The last he saw him alive, he said, was at 6:30 Sunday afternoon at his room. Later, he declared, he had heard of the row in the Durhammer saloon and went there looking for his parent. Not finding him he searched for him that night without success. He knew nothing of the actual fight.

George Durhammer, proprietor of the saloon was the second witness called and testified to the details of the fight Sunday night.

Both Nick and Charles Hefti, he swore, had spent the entire afternoon in his place, and were there when the trouble started about 7:20 o'clock in the evening.

The first he knew of the affair, he said, was when Nick Hefti made the

"Yes; they got my scalp finally."

"How long had you held that of face?"

"About thirty years. And it's pretty tough at my age to have to take up some new occupation to make a living."

"Haven't you got enough to live on?"

"I should say not!"

Short Story

SHORT STORY
DEVELOPED FILMSBy HARMONY WELLES
(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Nora could not remember having felt more keenly disappointed since she had started her travels.

"Surely we can buy camera films in all other cities on Sunday," she pouted to her brother.

"Certainly can in New York—our drug stores never close. But New York is not London, Girle, so you will have to do without films for this day."

He, too, was disappointed that they had failed to provide themselves with a supply of films. "You will have to be content with postal cards," he added.

"I dislike picture postals," she retorted; "they have no individuality—every tourist in the world can have the same views. I suppose we cannot have another day at Hampton Court either?"

While Nora spoke she unconsciously raised her camera and gazed ruefully at it.

The man occupying the seat behind her brother on top of the motor bus leaned forward.

"I beg your pardon, but what size films do you require? I have a half dozen rolls in my pocket." He produced a camera that was the twin to Nora's.

"Three and a quarter by four and a quarter," answered Jack Dean, with his quick smile. "That's mighty fine of you," he added. "But don't rob yourself."

Nora smiled delightedly as the stranger pulled two familiar yellow boxes from his ample pocket. "Here are two sizes," he said, and prepared to dismount from the bus.

"Three shillings is right, isn't it?" Jack asked.

"Quite right. Thank you, I hope you have good luck with them." He raised his hat and went swiftly down the stairs. Nora glanced down from the top of the bus, but the stranger was lost among the Sunday morning throng at the gate of Kensington.

"Wasn't that a streak of luck?" Jack laughed. "For once your railing aloud at Fate did some good. Rather a nice chap, that."

"I did not notice him especially," Nora replied, "but I hope his films are nice." A moment later a little cry of dismay left her lips.

"What's up?" Jack demanded.

"He has given us one roll that has been exposed. What a pity since we have no way of returning them." She examined the second yellow box and found it unbroken. "Fortunately for us, this one is all right."

"Perhaps we can Sherlock Holmes the chap through the pictures he has taken," suggested Jack.

During the following days Nora was most impatient while she waited for her snapshots from the photographer. Perhaps there was a slight hope that the six belonging to the stranger might prove at least interesting. To Nora there was ample food for romance and mystery in the incident.

When the films were returned with the prints she was flatly disappointed. Not so with Jack. He gazed long and ardently at the beautiful smiling face of the girl pictured in each of the strangers' snapshots.

"That is what I call a peach of a girl!" he informed Nora enthusiastically. "That chap must have crossed the ocean with her. These are all taken on shipboard. Perhaps if I put an advertisement in the paper I could find the fellow and later—the girl."

"Don't be foolish," laughed Nora. "The girl is no doubt the wife of the man." Even as she spoke Nora was conscious that she did not believe her words. "Let's see what kind of personals are in the 'Telegraph'—it might be a good idea."

Nora leaned over Jack's shoulder while he opened the huge morning paper.

A second later they looked at one another and laughed.

"By Jove, he's looking for us," Jack re-read the personal they had both seen. "Will couple on motor bus, Hampton Court, please communicate with J. Doane, 8 Norland Square, Holland Park. Films exchanged."

"Isn't this exciting?" exclaimed Nora. "Do write, Jack—you may meet the girl after all." She disappeared for a moment and returned with her own writing case. "You could suggest that he come up here tomorrow afternoon—couldn't you?"

"Sure! I say—that is a rich blush you are sporting for a man whom you say you didn't notice."

That was Jack's brotherly remark as he wrote his letter to J. Doane.

The next day when Mr. Doane called it was Jack who did most of the talking. Nora sat quietly beside the two men and exchanged more than one interested glance with the man whom she found of undoubted attraction. He, too, seemed to enjoy the smile in Nora's eyes and the occasional bits of conversation into which she was drawn.

"Since we are all Americans in a strange land won't you and your brother join me at dinner at the Trocadero tonight, Miss Dean?"

Nora blushed prettily and cast an appealing glance at her brother.

"We might call up Miss Drake and ask her to join us," continued Doane by way of persuasion.

Jack laughed. "Then it is settled. I would go most any place to meet the girl whose picture you have taken. What do you say, sis?"

"I will do my newest London purchase and be delighted," Nora retorted. "I am afraid you will have to let my brother keep those films," she added, "he has talked of nothing else since we had them developed."

"We might really call them interesting developments," laughed Doane. "And I can assure you, Miss Dean, that the films are no longer of interest to me." He paused a moment to watch the slow creep of Nora's cheeks.

"I promised Miss Drake a print soon after I had taken them. She said at the time that I would forget all about her the moment I arrived in London."

"You may as well forget her," laughed Jack, "because after tonight you won't have a chance in the world."

"Foolish and conceited boy," Nora admonished him. "Then I suppose I am to sit back and watch you and Mr. Doane quarreling over the smiles of Miss Drake?"

"It takes two to make a quarrel," Doane told her quietly, "and I am never going to be at war with your brother. He can have the films and the girl—if he can get her."

A scant month later two honeymoon couples returned to New York. Nora was walking the deck for the moment with Jack.

"The developments were far more interesting than we expected, were they not, brother mine?" she asked.

"There were two Cupids lurking in that camera of yours—sure enough."

Daddy's Bedtime

The Bull
Story — With a Ring
In His Nose.Put an Iron Ring in Brownie's Nose.

DADDY groaned as Jack and Evelyn came in. "So soon?" he said. "And I really haven't had time to think up a single thing."

"Never mind, daddy; we'll wait," the children offered.

"That's very kind of you," daddy replied, "but I think if you'll sit down I'll tell you your story now."

"Once upon a time there was a young brown bull. He lived in a nice green pasture where the grass was long and juicy, and on one side of the pasture was a lovely brook of clear water. When the days were warm he could go and stand in it and be as comfortable as you please under the shady trees that grew beside it."

"When he saw his master, the farmer, coming he would moo gently, for he knew that the good man always had a carrot or an apple in his pocket."

"One day the farmer came down to the field with a nice old horse, and he put him into the field with the bull."

"The horse will be company for Brownie," the farmer said.

"But Brownie was selfish. He wanted the field all to himself, and, lowering his head, he made for the horse. Fortunately he had no horns on his head and so could not hurt the horse much. It threw up its heels and ran away whenever it saw him coming."

"I'll have to take the horse or Brownie out of the field," the farmer remarked to the hired man. "The nag will never get any fatter if he is chased about all the time by the bull."

"So the farmer took the horse out, and then he put in a flock of sheep, but Brownie simply wouldn't have the sheep in his field."

"I'm tired of this," the farmer cried. So he went to his good friend, the blacksmith, and had an iron ring made.

"Then one day he went out to the field and drove Brownie to the barn. He tied him up there, and then, with the help of the hired man, a hole was punched in Brownie's nose. The iron ring was put into the hole and fastened there. Yes, of course, it hurt some."

"A rope was fastened to the iron ring, and when Brownie went out to the field he was tied to a tree, so he could go just so far and no farther. Then the horse and the sheep and the pigs and the chickens could run around as they pleased when the farmer put them into the field."

"Cross? Of course Brownie was cross. He hated the ring in his nose, and he hated being tied."

"It's your own fault," his mother moaned. "Remember, I told you to be have."

"But Brownie was so angry that he could only roar in reply."

A PENALTY WITHOUT AN INJURY

Our contemplation of the predicament of our good friend, D. Trimble, of West Salem, formerly a brother publisher, and more lately manufacturer of about the finest brand of canned peas that ever garnished a leg of lamb, has been accompanied by sincere regret that one of the very best laws that has been passed in this state should have been invoked to smite one who in violating its letter probably has not invaded its spirit in the least.

The state has proceeded against the West Salem cannery upon several counts, each involving infraction of women and children hours-of-labor laws. Of the operation in this state of laws of this character, Senator La Follette's magazine (the current issue) says:

"In the pea canning industry the commission found that all the employees were at work only a very short time in each year. The canning period extends over a time of only six weeks. Green peas are highly perishable. The year's crop is harvested all at once. The peas must be put into cans quickly after reaching the factory, or else they will spoil. There cannot be enough overtime to menace the welfare of the workers. Recognizing these conditions, the commission allowed overtime. But even then the overtime was granted only for a period of fifteen days, distributed over this period with the provision that the average per week for the six-week period should not exceed the standard of fifty-five hours a week."

The Wisconsin way is to protect the individual and the public without crippling legitimate business."

We believe the law has failed of adjustment to meet this case. True, the fact that every one of the factory's hands stands by the management and resents the state's action does not prove that the work injured some of them. But that class of workers who, independent of necessity, take a brief season of work to earn pin money, under the open-air conditions of a country village, are not apt to be hurt in the few weeks of their employment.

However, the factory would not have transgressed the laws under normal conditions. An extraordinarily hot season pushed the crop to early maturity, and the work of a month had to be done in two weeks; there are but a certain fixed number of available people in the village. To import help was impracticable, and the cost would probably have been prohibitive. In that emergency, feeling that "the Wisconsin way" would not permit them to suffer an injustice, the manufacturers permitted all who cared to do so to work in excess of the legal limit, but we believe the evidence is conclusive that no person worked unwillingly.

We are seeking to adjust new principles of law, comprising a new function of the state, to our industrial conditions. That hardship will be encountered here and there must be expected. That the West Salem people have, technically, violated the law is true. Having begun suit, the state may feel that it can not afford to withdraw it. But the state need not press for the exaction of the maximum fine. The minimum penalty would seem sufficient in this instance.

OUR BUSINESS IS PRINTING THE NEWS

It is the business of the newspaper to publish the news. If it does not print the news, it fails to fulfill its implied contract with its subscribers. That contract is to faithfully and fearlessly tell the reader what is going on in the world.

This, however, does not deprive the publisher of the right to exclude from the paper items the publication of which is apt to do grave injury. Papers of the best type frequently omit items of this kind, and in so doing serve their readers and society in general. The class of stories so ignored is, for the most part, personal, and is comprised of moral delinquencies which form no important part of the movement of events. They are usually petty.

But that which is news in the broad and important sense, the reader is entitled to have placed before him, and it is an unfortunate fact that interested persons are inclined to ask for the suppression of facts which the editor has no moral right to suppress. In this line are all matters relating to the conduct of the municipality; every citizen of the municipality has a right to know all about municipal business, in every stage.

In The Tribune the municipal news of La Crosse shall be published completely and impartially. The conduct of public officials shall be set forth, and if the editor deems that his duty, such conduct shall be interpreted and discussed editorially.

It may as well be mentioned here that public men who do not deal candidly with newspapers usually have for their pains only a reputation for loose handling of truth. So ample are his sources of information that it is seldom the publisher is fooled by a false statement. The paper may let the mendacious person "get by" with his little "fib," but he "has the culprit's number."

And so, don't think us unkind if you happen to figure in the news—we can't help it, and we try to treat you fairly; and don't fool yourself by trying to fool the paper.

COLONEL HOLWAY FILLS THE BILL

The appointment of Colonel Orlando Holway to the office of adjutant general will be approved by a majority of militiamen. His selection was expected, for he was in line for the office, but we believe there was in the choice recognition of more than mere seniority. General Holway is a good soldier, and he is a man every phase of whose citizenship measures up to the requirements of the high office to which he has been elevated. La Crosse people, knowing the pluck of this soldier who has faced his defeats without a murmur, and who can sound a charge but does not know how to sound a retreat, share with him the pleasure of his merited recognition.

The Farmers' National congress decides that the girls should stay on the farm. The ordinary way of promoting that end is to give them but down at Washington it takes more than that to catch the eye of the speaker.

The Cleveland women are to have a chamber of commerce, and it is hoped that the matrimonial market will receive more attention now.

The bachelors are to pay an additional income tax, but they feel it is much easier to write a check than to propose to a girl.

IN THE WORLD OF WOMEN

Mrs. Letitia Riddle, wife of Representative P. E. Riddle of Chickasha, Okla., has the distinction of being the only woman member of the commission recently named by Governor Lee Cruise to investigate the plans of the world's training for marriage movement, a benevolent organization chartered under the laws of Oklahoma for the purpose of training men and women in child culture and home government. Mrs. Riddle represents the State Federation of Women's Clubs on the commission.

The stopping of a lewd "hootchy kootchy" exhibit at the State fair by Miss Emily Bissel, chairman of the service committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs has developed a tense situation in Delaware. Miss Bissel, who introduced the Red Cross stamp into this country and is one of the best known club women in Delaware, caused the police to stop the objectionable side-show dance, with the result that the secretary of the fair demanded that she be expelled from the grounds. Miss Bissel and her co-workers withdrew and refused to further participate in a "better baby" contest at the exhibition, and demanded an apology from the secretary with assurance that he would not serve another year. So far the directors have not conceded to the women's demands.

Church Choirs
I never go to meeting and listen to the choir,
But what I am reminded of a place where there is a fire.
For once when I was young, and my voice could strike a tune,
I used to sing in meeting, though now I am immune.

But of all the tribulations, and the jealousy and strife,
That ever was invented to harass a pastor's life,
The choir of a church is the place where they are found,
Though you never would suspect it, unless you sneak around.

On the nights they meet to practice, when your ears will open wide

To hear the jingle jangle that's a-going on inside.
There may be room in heaven for the members of a choir,
If to be as shining angels they have any great desire.

For the tenor and the alto, the soprano and the bass,
Can harmonize in meeting, but in any other place

Two felines with their caudals tied and hung above a fire
Are just about as friendly as the members of a choir.

And so I often wonder when I go to church and hear
The sermon of the pastor, and I lend a willing ear

To the music of the choir as it makes the church resound,
If there's any place in heaven where its members will be found.

—The Tramp.

The Difference
Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, at one of those sumptuous Newport entertainments that have made her the world's leading hostess, talked with her shrewd humor of a mercenary marriage.

"And that man," said Mrs. Fish's interlocutor, in a shocked tone—"and that man is to marry that beautiful girl! But isn't there a tremendous difference in their ages?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Fish, "about $32,000,000."

Not to be "Joshed"
The farmer had bought a pair of shoes in the city shop. "Now, can't I sell you a pair of shoe trees?" suggested the clerk.

"Don't get fresh with me, sonny," replied the farmer bristling up; "I don't believe shoes kin be raised on trees any mor'n I believe rubbers grow on rubber trees or oysters on oyster plants, b'gosh!"

His Wife's Amusement
"I see you have a saddle horse now," observed the man in the cafe.
"Yes," acknowledged the other.
"My doctor advised me to go in for riding. I've never done any of it before."

"Do you get a good deal of amusement out of it?"
"Well, yes. But my wife enjoys it more than I do."

"I haven't seen her riding with you."
"Oh, she doesn't ride. She says it's safer and funnier to sit on a park bench and watch me go by."

Technical Longevity

On one occasion a census clerk, in scanning one of the forms to see that it had been properly filled up, noticed the figures 120 and 112 under the heading, "Age of father, if living," and "Age of mother, if living."

"But your parents were never so old, were they?" queried the astonished clerk.

"No," was the reply, "but they would ha' bin, if living."

Destructive Mikey

Mrs. Casey was proud of her strong, muscular son, and still more proud of him when he went into a gymnasium and made himself locally famous.

Then one day a rumor reached her ears which she did not like, and when Michael reached home that night she proceeded to take him to task.

"Look here, Mike Casey, what's this I'm hearing about your doin' at the gymnasium? Don't ye know it's poor we are, and have no money to pay for yer destructive carryin' on?"

"Why, what do ye mean, mither?" asked the astonished Mike.

"Ain't they sayin' all over town that ye have broke two of their best records down there?" she howled.—National Magazine.

A Conscientious Juror

A Cleveland lawyer tells how, during a trial, one of the jurors suddenly rose from his seat and fled from the court room. He was, however, arrested in his flight before he had left the building, and brought back.

"I should like to know what you mean by such an action as this," demanded the judge, in a lenient tone, however, as he knew the man, an elderly German, to be a simple, straightforward person.

"Well, your honor, I will explain," said the juror. "Ven Mr. Jones finished mit his talking my mind was clear all through, but ven Mr. Smith begins his talking I becomes all confused again already, and I says to myself, 'I better leave at once, and stay away until he is done,' because your honor, to tell the truth, I didn't like der vay der argument was going."

Motherly Admonition.

"Now, Anne, how often have I told you always to cast your eyes down when you are in the street? It makes a good impression, and, besides, you sometimes find a pocketbook that way."—Fliegende Blätter.

"Yet you knew that Pietro was heart and soul in the plots of the Italian patriots?"

"Yes."
"But you had not thought of going to help him fight?"

"No, my Seigneur, I had thought only of the fight for which I must be ready here."

"This Italian business will be good practice," said the general, as a man of today might speak of a tennis tournament. "And you and Pietro will be enchanted to be together again."

Francois smiled, and something in the smile wrung the general's heart.
"Francois, you are not going to be unhappy about little Alixe?"

Quickly Francois threw back, as if he had not heard the question: "My Seigneur, I will go to Pietro; it will be the best thing possible—action and training, and good old Pietro for a comrade. My Seigneur, may I go tomorrow?"

"Tomorrow!" The general was startled now. "A thousand thanks, but you are a sudden lad! Yet it will be no harder to give you up tomorrow than it would be next month. Yes, tomorrow, then, let it be."

Francois stood up, slim, young, alert and steady, yet somehow not as the boy who had come in to the general an hour before; more, perhaps, as a man who had been through a battle and come out very tired, with the noise of the fighting in his ears.

"I will go to the farm tonight, to my mother and my father. And this afternoon I will ride with Alixe, if you do not want me for the book, my Seigneur—and if she will go. May I ask you not to tell Alixe of this—to leave it to me to tell her?"

"Yes," agreed the general doubtfully. "But you will be careful not to—upset her, Francois?"

"I will be careful."
"And—and you will do what you can to help Pietro, will you not, my son?"

A quick contraction twisted Francois' sensitive mouth and was gone, but this time the general saw. "You may trust me, my Seigneur," the boy said, and moved to the door; but the general called to him as his hand touched the latch.

"Francois!"
"Yes, my Seigneur." He faced about, steady and grave, and stood hold the door.

"Francois, my son—I have not hurt you—very much? You do not love Alixe—deeply? Do you love her, Francois?"

There was a shock of stillness in the old dim library. Through the window—where the children's shouts had come in ten years before to the marquis and the general—one heard now in the quiet the sudden staccato of a late cricket. The general, breathing anxiously, looked at Francois, Francois standing like a statue. The general repeated his question softly, breathlessly. "Do you love her, Francois?"

With that the great eyes blazed and the whole face of the boy lighted as if a fire had flamed inside a lantern. He threw back his head.

"With all my soul," he said. "And forever."

CHAPTER XV.
I Said It, and I Will.

A rushing mountain stream—white-veiled in the falling, black-brown in the foam-flecked pools—tumbled, splashed, brawled down the mountain; the mountain hung over, shadowy; banks of fern held the rampant brook in chains of green. Alixe and Francois, riding slowly in the coolness of the road below, looked up and saw it all, familiar, beautiful, full of old associations.

"One misses Pietro," Francois said. "He always wanted to ride past the 'Trou du Gouverneur.'"

A Roman legend had given this name to the deep pool of the brook by the road; it was said that the cruel old governor had used it, two thousand years back, for drowning refractory peasants. Alixe gazed steadily at the dark, murmuring water.

"Yes, one misses him. Is life like that, do you suppose, Francois? One grows up with people, and they get to be as much a part of living as the air, or one's hands—and then, suddenly, one is told that they are going away. And that ends it. One must do without air, without hands. What a world, Francois!"

"We are not meant to like it too much, I believe, Alixe," said Francois sunnily. "It is just as pleasant, this world, when you stop to consider. The real business will come, I suppose, when we are moved on a step farther. Friendship and separation will not seem so badly arranged then, probably. This is school, this life, I gather. My mother says it is not very important if one has a good seat in the school-room or a bad; if one sits near one's playmates or is sent to another corner, so long as one is a good child and works heartily at one's lessons. It is only for a day—and then we go home, where all that is made right. Not a bad idea of my mother's, is it, Alixe?"

"Your mother is a wonderful woman," Alixe answered thoughtfully. "She lives like that. She never let things trouble her, not even when your father lost everything. Did she, Francois?"

"No," said Francois. "She is one of the few people who know what the real things are and live in them. It is hard to do that. I can not. I care so bitterly for what I want. It is—Francois hesitated—"it is very hard for me to give up—what I want." He stumbled over the words; his voice shook so that Alixe shifted in the saddle and looked at him inquiringly.

"Francois! Is anything wrong? Must you give up something?"

Francois laughed then and patted the brown arching neck of Capitaine, successor to Coq. "Everybody must give up things; and renunciation is the measure of one's strength," he said with twenty-year-old generalization, yet with a light in his face which might have been the smiling of an aged saint.

"You were talking about Pietro," he went on rapidly; "about our separation from him, our good old Pietro! I do miss him. Ye that was inevitable from the beginning. That was life. Pietro is Italian; he has his place over there—and he nodded to where far-off Italy might lie. 'He calls sunnily. 'It is just as pleasant, this world, when you stop to consider. The real business will come, I suppose, when we are moved on a step farther. Friendship and separation will not seem so badly arranged then, probably. This is school, this life, I gather. My mother says it is not very important if one has a good seat in the school-room or a bad; if one sits near one's playmates or is sent to another corner, so long as one is a good child and works heartily at one's lessons. It is only for a day—and then we go home, where all that is made right. Not a bad idea of my mother's, is it, Alixe?'"

"Your mother is a wonderful woman," Alixe answered thoughtfully. "She lives like that. She never let things trouble her, not even when your father lost everything. Did she, Francois?"

"No, not fair," repeated the boy. "You do not seem to see what he is—a heart of gold, a wall of rock. It is not his way to talk much, but he has great qualities."

MILLION IN SILK

PASSES THE CITY

Eight Car Train from Seattle to New York
City Is Worth Fortune

A special freight train, containing eight cars of silk valued at over a million dollars, passed through the city yesterday afternoon over the Burlington railroad. The train was made up in Seattle, bound for New York city.

The Burlington is reporting an unusually heavy business this fall in every branch of freight but the wheat and flour shipments from the northwest are slow. The heaviest shipments through here on the Burlington in the past few days have been potato shipments from various points in Minnesota.

Three or four cars of sand have been unloaded in front of the depot. A load of brick was unloaded early in the spring for the purpose, it was announced, of building a platform for the depot. The announcement has been made that the platform will be erected as soon as a little more of the work on the double tracking is done.

Dr. H. R. Gray has been appointed company physician for the Burlington railroad here. Dr. A. A. Maurer was formerly company physician.

GOPHER PIONEER

DIES AT WINONA

WINONA, Minn., Oct. 2.—Major B. H. Randall, who arrived at Fort Snelling in 1849 and was made clerk for the settlers, a prominent office at the time, died early yesterday afternoon at a local hospital. He was 90 years old. His son, Frank L. Randall, former superintendent of the St. Cloud reformatory, was among those at his bedside.

Major Randall was three times a member of the Territorial legislature and in later years a member of the state legislature. He was a leader in the organization of Hennepin county in 1852. For many years he was the president of the Old Settlers of Minnesota, the parent organization of the Minnesota Territorial Pioneers. A. L. Larpeur is one of the seven surviving members of the organization.

Rheumatism

A Home Cure Given by One Who Had It

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by muscular and inflammatory rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried every remedy, but relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case. I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatism to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be this long-looked-for means of curing your rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

Minneapolis Man Is Hit by Either Switch Engine or Freight in the Yards

John Olson, a laborer, giving his residence to the police as Minneapolis, was run over either by a freight train or a switch engine last night about 11 o'clock in the yards of the Milwaukee railroad. The accident happened near Berlin street. Olson's right leg was almost severed below the knee.

With Olson was a man giving his name as Richard Reese of Minneapolis. Reese reported the maiming of his partner to the north side officers of the Milwaukee. Dr. C. F. Suiter was called.

He immediately left the south side in his automobile, but misunderstanding the directions over the telephone, raced to Grand Crossing. It was nearly an hour before he reached the injured man. Patrolmen Arntson and Miska took care of Olson until the physician arrived.

According to the story told the police this morning by Reese, the two men had just arrived in the city from Chicago, where they had been employed during the summer. Reese said they were on their way to Minneapolis.

Reese says they were walking the tracks to meet an extra freight train which was going west. They intended to board the train. According to Reese's story, neither one of the men heard whatever struck them.

Officials of the road this morning questioned the trainmen and yardmen who were on duty last night, but have not been able to find anybody who saw the men before or after Olson was injured.

Olson was taken to the Lutheran hospital, where Dr. R. E. Flynn, county physician, took charge of the case. Reese is being held by the police pending an investigation into the accident.

FEAR LOSS OF NERVE

RESCUE OF IMPRISONED MINER IS DELAYED BY HEAVY RAIN AND HE GETS RESTLESS

CENTRALIA, Pa., Oct. 2.—The heavy rain has retarded the work of rescuing Thomas Tohesky, the miner who is entombed in a chamber of the Continental mines of the Lehigh Valley Coal company here. General Manager Fred M. Chase is now of the opinion that the entombed miner will not be reached before Friday or Saturday.

During the night the rain poured on the rescuers greatly impeding the progress of excavation. The officials are fearful lest the imprisoned man lose his nerve. His cries at every new fall of rock were more frequent today and it is known that he is growing restless. Words of encouragement were shouted to him frequently and the best nourishment known to science is being sent through the tube, the only communication between the living grave and the outside world.

FOR SALLOW, BLOTCHY, ROUGH OR GREASY SKINS

(From Woman's Tribune.)

Some skins require constant grooming to keep them from becoming oily, muddy, blotchy or rough, or if such condition has developed, to overcome it. In such chronic cases it is particularly inadvisable to keep piling on cosmetics which clog the pores, collect dust and dirt, making the complexion worse than ever. It's a lot more sensible to use ordinary mercolized wax, which literally absorbs a bad complexion. Apply the wax, like cold cream, before retiring; next morning, in washing it off, you'll wash away fine, flour-like particles of the unsightly cuticle. Repeat for a week or more and you'll have an entirely new skin—soft, satiny, spotless and beautiful as a child's. One ounce of mercolized wax, procurable at any druggist's, is all you'll need.

If the skin be wrinkled or flabby, here's the best possible remedy: Mix ½ pint white hazel and 1 ounce powdered saxonite and use as a face bath. It works like a miracle, yet is entirely harmless.—Advertisement.

IS LA CROSSE SATISFIED?

The Evidence Is Convincing. The Testimony Open to Investigation

Before a statement can be accepted here, it must be supported by local testimony—by the evidence of someone residing in La Crosse. Statements from unknown people in remote places may be true, but we cannot prove them. Here is a statement by a La Crosse resident:

John N. Wiggert, 1114 Third St., La Crosse, Wis., says: "I suffered from kidney complaint and a hard, dull pain in my back and kidneys. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and had good relief. I am pleased to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills, as I know that they are a remedy of merit and can be relied upon to cure kidney complaint."

If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. Wiggert had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Temperature in September Ranged from 98 to 32 with Average Normal

The month of September was a month of variable temperature, according to the monthly meteorological summary just issued by the local weather bureau. There were but ten clear days during the month and eight partly clear days, while twelve days were cloudy and precipitation occurred on nine days. The percentage of sunshine was 58, two degrees below normal.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to flush kidneys if bladder bothers you.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked, get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

SPOTLIGHTS

BILL CHANGES.

Tonight the Van Dyke & Eaton company will put on a new drama, "John Martin's Secret," which will continue for the balance of the week. The play deals with the government officials among the moonshine stills in the old Virginia hills. It has a good plot, plenty of comedy and heart interest.

New songs by Mr. Foster and motion pictures are given with each change of play.

Every Friday night after the regular performance given by the company the "amateurs" of La Crosse are given an opportunity to do a stunt of any acceptable nature. Some are good, while others are not so good, but all go to make up an evening of fine amusement.

FINE FEATHERS.

In "Fine Feathers" Eugene Walter is said to have drawn a fine picture out of the common episodes of everyday life. No play that has been presented in New York or Chicago last season aroused the profound admiration which this very virile drama excited during its runs in the two principal cities of this country. It will be presented here by its producer, Mr. H. H. Frazee, at the La Crosse theater on Sunday, Oct. 5, matinee and night.

"Fine Feathers" is the story of a woman's ambition run riot. Bob Reynolds, a government cement inspector working on a salary of $25 per week, and his wife, a pretty creature fond of nice things, live happily in a bungalow which they are paying for by installment, on Staten Island, N. Y. The wife finds the $25 a week insufficient to meet their needs. Presently there comes the opportunity to better their fortunes. The sum of $40,000 cash is offered Reynolds by an old college friend, John Brand, provided he will pass certain cement which Brand is selling for the building of a dam. Mrs. Reynolds insists upon the bargain which Reynolds calls "graft and thievery," and into the family council comes Dick Meade, a newspaper man, who advises Reynolds to hold fast to his principles. The little lover of fine feathers who neglects the butcher's bill to buy her a new hat, however, sees things differently. She makes a secret pact with Brand to help him win Bob over and is put on the Brand payroll without her husband's knowledge, and when all is revealed by an unexpected visit of the husband to his home on an afternoon when Brand had planned to take Mrs. Reynolds and her neighbor, Mrs. Collins, out for a ride, the lover of fine feathers declares herself. In a frenzy of despair over his love for her, the husband gives in. The lover of fine feathers has won.

A FEAST IN NERO'S ROME.

The magnificent elaboration of George Kleine's splendid photodrama production "Quo Vadis" has attracted widespread attention all over America and not only revived tremendous interest in Sienkiewicz's famous novel which it so admirably visualizes, but also has aroused a very considerable curiosity as to the habits and customs of the Romans during the time of Nero.

The early scenes showing some of the imperial banquets and feasts are so pretentious that many inquiries have been received from spectators for further details. According to the most authentic reports Nero and his friends were epicures of the first degree and their feasts were important functions of their lives.

EFFORT TO HIDE MURDER IN VAIN

ST. CLOUD, Minn., Oct. 2.—When Tom Pelton, 23 years old, a laborer, was stabbed to death last night, his murderers sought to hide their crime by placing the body on the Northern Pacific tracks in this city. Several trains are believed to have run over the man's corpse, yet it was not so extensively maimed that the many knife wounds were obliterated by the other injuries.

The coroner's jury, which sat at noon today, found that Pelton had come to his death from knife wounds inflicted by persons unknown.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with 1/2 pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents worth) in a pint bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

MANY CASES ON SPARTA CALENDAR

Twelve Criminal Actions to Be Settled by the Circuit Court; Civil Issues Are Numerous

SPARTA, Wis., Oct. 2.—The calendar for the fall term of Circuit court is out and contains a dozen criminal cases, one of them being the case of the City of Sparta vs. Comstock & Davis, which was appealed from justice court last spring.

Eight of the twelve are excise cases appealed from justice court. These include the cases of the Wilton saloon keepers who were arrested last spring for violating the Sunday closing law. It is said that they will all change their pleas and pay their fines and the costs.

The cases for trial are the State vs. James Riordan, assault, and the State vs. Louis Yanke, larceny. Yanke is accused of having broken into a box car and stolen beer at the Northwestern station in Sparta, and Riordan is accused of having attacked a woman in the city of Tomah.

The civil issues include the cases of Anna Fuenger vs. Hubert Fuenger from Tomah; Faulkner vs. Schulz; White vs. the Village of Norwalk, et al.; Clausen vs. Jensen; Johns vs. Nelson and Drowatzky; Drowatzky vs. Wolf; Roundy, Peckham & Dexter company vs. Hettinger; Atherton vs. Joint School District No. 1 of the City of Sparta; Palen vs. Rathbun; Dunder vs. Goodyear Lumber Company; Gelhausen vs. Goodyear Lumber company; Englerth vs. Lyddy; Day vs. Ferme; Sherwin vs. Sherwin; Suppy vs. Neville; Knight vs. Knight; Clerk vs. Clark; Noth vs. Sexton; Lucas vs. Cartman; Cicol vs. Perkins; Burnett vs. Schmelling, et al.; Rockwell vs. Rockwell; Evans vs. Schmelling; In re-will of William N. The case of Faulkner vs. Schulz is a breach of promise case from Tomah; White vs. the Village of Norwalk is a case for injuries said to have been received by the plaintiff because of an obstruction in an alley way or street; Atherton vs. the School District of the City of Sparta, is an after-math of the late unpleasantness in local school circles. The cases of the Sherwins, the Knights, the Clarks, the Rockwells, and the Abrahamsons are divorces. Ida Englerth vs. John Lyddy involves a gap between the Town chairman and the Path Master of the Town of Wilton. The Hogue will case, it is said, will not be tried at this term. It will probably be settled. Joffer vs. the Village of West Salem is a certiorari for the purpose of removing Joffer's name from the posted list in that village.

Daily University Bulletin

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 2.—That root rot and leaf blight, the two most common diseases affecting the ginseng plant, can be controlled is the belief of men who have been carrying on field tests and rather extensive experiments, this summer on several of the large ginseng beds near Antigo in Langlade county.

This work has been done co-operatively by the United States bureau of plant pathology, the department of plant pathology of the University of Wisconsin's college of agriculture and the growers.

Spraying with bordeaux mixture, pyrox and lime sulphur were methods used in the early summer as a means of checking the damage from leaf blight, which attacks the stalks and foliage of the plant during the warm, moist weather of June and July.

The best results were obtained with the use of the bordeaux mixture and pyrox in the case of leaf blight, while dipping the roots of the plant in mild solutions of formalin and corrosive sublimate before planting were found to render them less subject to injury from root rot.

Acid phosphate as a fertilizer was also tried out with the idea of rendering the soil unfavorable to the development of the bacteria causing root rot.

Care in preparing the soil before planting has been shown to be an important factor in the cultivation of this plant, and small experiments with steaming pans used to sterilize the soil for a depth of over two feet were tried. Steam of enough intensity to cook a potato buried a foot and a half under ground was considered requisite.

The closing exercises of the school in June would annually bring large numbers of people from abroad. The college paper would continually keep the city of La Crosse in the minds of the people abroad.

WOULD MAKE CITY CENTER OF CHURCH

Rev. Vornholt Urges that All Activities of Denomination Would Follow College

OFFERS REGULAR COLLEGE WORK

Would Be Addition to Educational Facilities of City as Well as Magnet for Population

Urging that the presence in La Crosse of the college of the Reformed church would make the city the center of all of the denomination's activities, Rev. E. Vornholt, pastor of St. John's church, today made public a statement explaining the benefits the city would derive from the removal of the college.

Rev. Vornholt's statement is a move in the campaign to collect sufficient subscriptions to insure the removal of the school from Sheboygan to La Crosse.

In connection with his statement Rev. Vornholt said that the school is not, as has been erroneously reported, a German institution. He declared that as much attention was paid to German as to English, but that the language of the pupils was predominantly English.

Rev. Vornholt's Statement.

His statement follows:

This is campaign week to draw the Reformed church Seminary, College and Academy to La Crosse. The chances are good. The synod of the east two weeks ago favored the relocation to La Crosse, but awaits action of the synod of the Northwest. The Central Synod decided this week, that although it stands for last year's action to remove to Sheboygan, Wis., it is open to new plans, and also refers final decision to the Synod of the Northwest. The telegram further says:

"Let your committee make an attractive offer as a compromise. I think your chances are good if you develop sympathy for La Crosse."

Have This Week

Citizens, you have this week until the 8th of October, when the Synod of the Northwest begins its session at LaFayette, Ind., to gain an institution of importance for your city; which not more than one city out of a hundred of your size has in a hundred years.

The college in question is now located at Town of Herman, Sheboygan county, Wis., ten miles away from the city of Sheboygan, in the country. Needing new buildings to enlarge its accommodations for students and professors and wishing to broaden its scope of influence, the question has come up to re-locate the same.

The number of students attending this institution last year was 139. It stands to reason that this school advantageously located at La Crosse would double the number of its students and its influence in a few years and would become an addition to La Crosse of greatest importance and benefit.

Do you want it? The chances are good, if you do your best!

This school offers a regular college course in languages and science for all and a theological course in its seminary for the students of the ministry.

What would it mean to the city of La Crosse?

Would Be Church Center

The school located at La Crosse, would make La Crosse the center of the German division of the Reformed church in the United States. It would draw a dozen families of the professors, and many other families from all over, to facilitate the education of their children; and a student body of from 150 to 300.

The school would become a free advertising medium for La Crosse by its students and the ministers going out from here, like none other.

The moral influence an institution like this exerts is simply incalculable.

The churches and Sunday schools of the city would gain invaluable assistance in their work through the professors and seminarians of the school if they solicited their co-operation.

The institution would bring prestige to the city, lower the school tax and enhance the value of the property of that part of the city where it was located.

The large body of the synod of the Northwest would frequently meet here.

The closing exercises of the school in June would annually bring large numbers of people from abroad.

The college paper would continually keep the city of La Crosse in the minds of the people abroad.

Excellent General Courses

The college of the school offers a regular and thorough course in the German, Latin, Greek and French languages; and the sciences; and would fit in appropriately with the excellent Normal school, the State

HAIR STOPS FALLING, DANDRUFF DISAPPEARS---25 CENT DANDERINE.

Save your hair! Make it soft, fluffy, lustrous and beautiful

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

University Extension and the business colleges here.

The citizens would be offered a general college course for their sons at home; and avoid the great expense of sending them abroad to educate them.

Considering this great advantage or inducement, it seems to us that thirty thousand dollars, or approximately that would mean but little to a city of 32,000 inhabitants, among them a number of wealthy men and millionaires, compared with the financial, moral and spiritual influence a college and seminary of this kind would offer. On an average the 30,000 would not even mean a whole dollar to the individual.

Can you afford to let this chance pass without a strenuous effort to locate this college here?

La Crosse, located on the banks of the Mississippi with its trunk line railroads has all the advantages to become a large, thrifty and prosperous city. Will you make it that?

It is up to you.

The seminary and college of the Reformed church will help you to do it.

The Reformed church seminary and college is the only institution of the German division of the Reformed church in the United States which has a membership of about seventy thousand in the United States. The Reformed church English and German divisions united in the General Synod is over three hundred thousand members strong. The Reformed church is a branch of the Reformed churches of the sixteenth century. In spirit, doctrine, government and pulpits it is one with the Presbyterian church. The alliance of the Reformed churches holding the Presbyterian system of government and originating through the leadership of Zwingli of Switzerland, Calvin of France, and Knox of Scotland, in the sixteenth century holds a membership of twenty million in the world. The branch of the Reformation which started in Switzerland adopted no distinctive name but styled itself simply, "The Reformed Church" and has gone down into history by this name.

About 1720 the first synod of the Reformed church was organized in the United States. At first, exclusively German. The Reformed church in the United States now numbers five English and three German synods. Fifty years ago the seminaries of this church in the country, having become English, it became necessary for the Germans to organize a new seminary for the German division of the church in order to educate their ministers for the German field. Thus the school at Franklin, Wis., started. Ten miles away from the city of Sheboygan in the country. Without any railroad facilities. In the last fifty years, this school, with all its disadvantages has turned out in the neighborhood of one thousand men for the ministry and other professions, of whom about two hundred pastors are in the field today, ministering in both German and English languages. This is the school that wishes to re-locate for a larger and broader field of work.

If La Crosse makes a satisfactory offer approaching the thirty thousand which were asked, it stands the best of show to draw the institution here.

This depreciation on the present value should be charged on the total investment of $614,380.00, in which case the average depreciation would amount to about 1/4 of 1 per cent. This average depreciation as shown should be added to the average repair account.

I have before me a statement of annual repairs on the plant for the past 11 years, made up by the clerk of the board of public works by running through the invoices and repair accounts in the office, and he assures me that they are as nearly correct as can be figured out from the data in the office. These repair bills include the following items: Pumping equipment, boiler and boiler equipment, buildings, intake, distributing mains, hydrants, fountains and water troughs, totaling for ten years $22,557.68 or an average annual up-keep of $2,255.79.

In these items of repair expense I find charges for repairing the intake during that period, $4,703.00, which will never occur again.

Repairs to Pump

In a recent letter Mr. Burdick suggests regarding the Holley pump removed to the new plant, that in order to properly adapt it to the new pumping conditions, a smaller cylinder should be put on and the cracked base should be replaced, totaling about $2,100.00, in which case the pump will be good for another 25 years. A new cylinder is not necessary because of depreciation in the present cylinder, but is recommended to adapt the pump to the new conditions, and therefore its cost approximating $1,500.00 should go into the cost of the new plant. This pump is already 20 years old and therefore would have a total life of 45 years, and there is no suggestion that the pump could not then, at a reasonable repair, be put into good order to make it last many years longer. To confirm this idea I read in one of the reports in my hands an opinion expressed concerning the Worthington pumps at Cambridge, Mass., that "there is no reason why, with care, they should not last 100 years or longer and yet be in good condition." But the new plant, that is the pumping station and the reservoir, are built of reinforced concrete and if properly built as they are supposed to be, there is no reason why they should not be good in 200 years with a maintenance charge for up-keep that will be scarcely appreciable.

I am informed that water pipes taken up here that are 30 years old are still in good order, and for practical purposes are as good as new. Necessarily, taking in the dirty Mississippi river water as they have, there is more or less deposit of mud. But whatever pipe has been found damaged has been cared for in the repairs indicated above.

From the data thus obtained, which I submit for consideration, a total annual depreciation and up-keep charge of less than 1/4 of 1 per cent will keep the integrity of the plant intact indefinitely.

As throwing some further light upon this subject I refer to a report upon the then proposed new plant for Columbus, Ohio, by the well known water engineer, Samuel M. Gray, of February, 1901, in which the charges against the proposed plant for interest and depreciation is placed at 4 1/2 per cent. Evidently Mr. Gray does not agree with me as to the propriety of the interest charge on the investment. I believe I am right. But he totals interest and depreciation at 4 1/2 per cent while in the newspaper statement it totals 7 1/2 per cent. If an interest charge is proper at all, surely 3 1/2 per cent interest and 1 per cent depreciation would be a discrimination in favor of the interest charge as against depreciation charge of one per cent in Gray's estimate.

$19,000 to the Good
Collating all of this data and assuming the 1 per cent charge is correct as against the evidences on our own plant of less than 1/4 of 1 per cent the proper charge for depreciation and up-keep would be $9,500.00 instead of $28,000.00 or a credit to the good of $19,000.00.

I have before me the audit report to the city of La Crosse, Dec. 31, 1912 of Frane, Dougherty Company, from which it appears that the book value of that date is charged up with a depreciation of $5,718.14 showing that the books have not been neglected of depreciation.

I also find credited to "earnings" for "fire protection based on fair hydrant rental" $13,000.00, or an average of less than $25.00 each for our 541 hydrants.

I have before me a table showing hydrant charges for 142 cities of the United States, the average of which is $47.00 or $22.00 per hydrant more than is credited in the statement referred to—that is the credit of $13,000.00 should be enlarged to $24,902, that is $11,902.00 should be added to the earnings account.

I do not find any credit for water used for street sprinkling purposes although some cities charge for sprinkling at $3.50 per 100 feet of pavement 25 feet wide and an increase charge for wider pavement area.

I find and make no complaint therefore that several of our institutions are getting water at 75 per cent discount from the regular charge, cemetery associations, 50 per cent discount, hospitals, 50 per cent discount, parochial schools, 75 per cent discount, Home of the Friendless, 75 per cent discount, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., 50 per cent discount, water troughs no credit. But in order to determine what the plant is really doing for the citizens, the earnings should be credited with the full regular charges. I do not know what that would amount to and it is not material for my purpose.

Sums Up Errors

To sum up then, I find as follows:
Erroneous charges—
Error in interest charge, $42,750.00
Error in depreciation charge, 19,000.00
Deficient hydrant charge, 11,902.00
Totals, $73,652.00
Deduct alleged deficiency, $31,000.00

Earnings of the plant to the good, $42,652.00

The interest charge of 4 1/2 per cent which I have discussed has no relation whatever to the interest on our outstanding bonds. The business man's interest charge on his investment is in addition to whatever interest he may have to pay on his indebtedness. The total outstanding indebtedness to date on water works bonds is $644,000.00, on which the city is paying an actual interest of $23,048.50 or an average interest of 3.6 per cent. The next bond maturing within two or three years is a 5 per cent bond and when paid the average rate of interest will drop considerably. But the sinking fund for retiring bonds is earning 3 per cent in banks and bond investments and brings in about 40 per cent of the actual interest paid out so that the net cost of the interest on the bond amounts to approximately 2 per cent or a net interest of $12,880.00. Surely the excess earnings above indicated, $42,652.00 plus $6,000.00 to $10,000.00 for full cemetery, etc., charges and proper sprinkling credit, is abundantly able to take care of this constantly decreasing interest charge on bonds and provide a reasonable sinking fund for retiring the bond.

I am wholly unable to see why at this time we should begin to accumulate a fund for building another water plant at some time in the future, no one knows when if ever. It is true, had we accumulated a sufficient fund, the new plant could have been paid for without the necessity of issuing $400,000.00 additional bonds at the present time as we have done; but that theory of paying for public improvements might also be applied to any public improvement undertaken, as for instance street paving, parks, etc., for which bonds have been issued.

I can see no reason at this particular time for reversing the financial policy that has been adopted by all municipalities from the United States government down to townships of issuing bonds to pay for new improvements. I have always felt that if municipalities had to provide the cash in advance for improvements it would be a great check upon extravagance that seems to run wild in municipal expenditures. But I find nothing in the present water works situation that calls for such a reverse of financial policy.

I thank the public for such perusal of this article as they have felt worth while to give it and can well appreciate the prayer of the editor that other contributors will cut their "tales" closer to the ears of the dog than I have done.

Yours truly,
C. W. DICKINSON.

BOSSHARD AMUSED AT SENTINEL'S CLAIMS

A story in the Milwaukee Sentinel to the effect that Senator Otto Bosshard is being kept from entering the Seventh district congressional race because of injury he might do Lieutenant Governor Thomas Morris' candidacy for the United States senatorship, is taken as a joke by both Senator Bosshard and Governor Morris.

"The Sentinel seems to know more about my affairs than I do myself," said Mr. Bosshard today, who also grinned when informed it was rumored that he may resign the senatorship.

"I know nothing of Mr. Bosshard's intentions and certainly know of no injury his candidacy for congress could do me," said Mr. Morris.

Cricket is the national game of Englishmen, and seems always to have been played in Britain. The first mention of it is found in a manuscript of the thirteenth century. The name comes from the Saxon "cric" or "cryc," a crooked stick—an obvious reference to the bat with which it is played. Wherever the English have colonized the game is played, and in many of the British possessions it has become popular with the natives, notably in New Zealand.

MARSHALL CELEBRATES WEDDING DATE--URGES YOUTHFUL MARRIAGES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Vice President Marshall today celebrated his eighteenth wedding anniversary by being proud that he did not have to be reminded of the event by Mrs. Marshall.

"When couples have no children, like us, it's easy to remember anniversaries—because they only have themselves to remember," said the vice president to a United Press correspondent.

"I'm ending eighteen years of very happy married life today. But, as a rule, I would advise others to get married younger and have children. I was 41 when I was married."

"I think the general run of men should be married before they're 30, and women around 25, or before 30. I was an old bachelor. A couple of bachelor friends of mine, seeing how happy I was, got married and both were divorced within a year. It depends mostly upon the woman you pick out."

"Although we have no children, Mrs. Marshall just adores them; so do I. But I attribute my married happiness partly to the fact that we haven't had any children. I am growing old and might have been stern and harsh with them. People ought to marry young. They often become 'set' in their ways when they wait too long."

remark to his brother, Charles, "Let's go home and talk a little socialism."

Took Brother's Fight
"What do you know about socialism, I'll punch your face in," he alleged William Schorral, 1413 South Fifth street, said. Schorral had been in the saloon the greater part of the day.

"No you won't. If you're going to punch anyone start on me," Durhammer said Charles Hefti said, at the same time grabbing Schorral and throwing him through the door. Both Schorral and Hefti, who were grappling, fell, he said. Nick Hefti and Rye also went out in the melee which was over in a few minutes.

"I got hold of Rye outside," said Durhammer, "and got him to come into the saloon."

"He had a black eye and was bleeding from a cut over the eye. I washed him off. No, he didn't seem to be seriously hurt but was mighty mad and vowed that he was going to lick Nick Hefti for striking him."

Testifying as to Rye's usual conduct, Durhammer said that he was peaceable except that occasionally—perhaps twice a year—he got "streaky" and would lose his temper.

Angry Over Taxes
The last instance of this, he said, was two weeks ago when the old man was greatly agitated over the cost of sewer extension past his property. In discussing this he made one remark which may be an explanation of how the body came to be in the slough.

You might as well jump in the creek as try to live the way they tax you in this town," Durhammer swore Rye told him. Durhammer, who has known Rye for thirteen years, attached no importance to the remark and doesn't think that he carried out this casual comment on Sunday night.

Saw Nick Hefti Late
The saloonkeeper testified that later he went to the home of Charles Hefti and found that the latter, in the fight, had broken his right wrist. Nick Hefti, the man being held by the police, was there until a late hour. The next he saw of Nick Hefti, he said, was at 9 o'clock Monday morning.

Charles Hefti, brother of the man being held by the police, testified that he and his brother had spent all of Sunday afternoon in the saloon, talking, playing cards and amusing themselves. There was very little beer consumed, he swore. Late in the afternoon, at Durhammer's request, he acted as bartender and was thus employed at 7:30 when his brother and Schorral got into the row over a chance remark on socialism.

"When Schorral said he would punch my brother's head," said Charles Hefti, "I said, no you don't, take me first. Then I got hold of him and pushed him through the door. There are two steps leading into the saloon and we fell down these. When I got up Nick and Rye were also in a heap on the sidewalk. The entire affair didn't take over two or three minutes and no one seemed to be injured. I started for home at once, with Nick, having discovered that in the mix-up I had broken my right arm."

Home All Night
The witness then testified that his brother Nick remained with him throughout the night and did not leave the house at all.

"Nick went to bed and didn't get up, I know. I was forced to sit up all night because of the pain in my arm was giving me."

Herman Zellmer, 512 Jackson St., a clearmaker, was another patron of the saloon Sunday evening, testifying that he went there about ten minutes before the fight started. His testimony, in the main, substantiated that of Durhammer and Charles Hefti. He swore that Rye seemed to have suffered no great injury in the fight with the exception of a swollen eye and a cut on the side of his head, above the optic.

He testified that Rye, following the encounter, was in an excited state and was angry over the blow which he insisted had been struck him by Nick Hefti.

Others to Testify
Other witnesses whose testimony will be heard today are John Schorral, 1413 South Fifth; Otto Larson, 1623 South Third; William Weigel, 1419 South Sixth; Mrs. Kiel, 1413 South Fifth; Mrs. Emil Kum, 1501 South Fifth; Albert Zischke, 1220 South Fifth; John Wedtke, 1408 South Eighth; Louis Larson, 1623 South Third; and Ernest Dummer, 1306 South Seventh.

Of this list Albert Zischke's testimony is awaited with great interest. Zischke, it is said, saw the entire affair, and was perfectly sober. Difficulty is being encountered in reaching him today, he having gone to the farm of E. T. Mueller in the bottoms, south of the city. He will probably be brought to town soon enough to take the stand this afternoon, however.

Hearing Resumed
The hearing was resumed at 1:30 this afternoon when John Schorral was called to the stand.

Attorney J. E. Higbee appeared to look for Nick Hefti and questioned all witnesses as to the conduct of Mr. Rye the night of the fight.

Attorney James Thompson has been retained by the son of the dead man and is attending the hearings. Schorral testified that he arrived at the saloon at 6:30 Sunday evening.

Rye, he said, was standing at the bar and asked him to have a drink. This was one hour before the trouble.

"The trouble started through politics. I had an argument with Nick Hefti and told him I'd lick him. Charlie Hefti grabbed me and we fell down the step into the street and I was knocked senseless. When I got up Rye said, 'Some one hit me.'"

Schorral said Rye refused to go home, when he left the saloon bit said he was going to his sister-in-law's. Rye did not say who struck him.

Schorral testified that he didn't know whether Rye went home and did not look for him. The last he had seen of him he was going south.

When Rye's body was found it was three or four blocks north of there and in the slough across the Mormon Coulee road.

Dr. A. Gunderson followed Schorral on the stand.

Dr. Gunderson swore he held a post mortem examination this afternoon. He swore that the old man had a scalp wound above the right eyebrow and that he found a small hemorrhage near the temple and under the scalp.

On the left side of the head much blood was found under the scalp. An examination of the brain showed it to be normal with the exception of a little blood clot which could not have caused death. Neither would it have caused mental aberration.

The blow must have been made with a blunt instrument such as a fist, he said, although he doubted that it was caused by a fist.

He testified that there was no water in the stomach and lungs.

At the time the post mortem was held it was impossible to tell how long the man had been dead. The heart and liver were normal.

"I couldn't state definitely what caused his death but it looks to me like the blow on the head was the cause of his death."

The examination, he explained, was superficial. The body may have been in the water a couple of days he said.

Answering a jurymen, Dr. Gunderson said Rye was dead when his body entered the water.

The questions asked Gunderson by Higbee indicated the latter sought to prove that Rye could have jumped from the Isle La Plume bridge and struck a piling with his head.

Dr. Flynn was next called and testified that he and Gunderson made the examination of the body.

He swore he saw the body first at 3 o'clock Wednesday and that it was in good state of preservation.

The British coast is so well protected with lighthouses that if a ship sailed right round England, Scotland and Ireland by night only on six occasions would it be where it could not see the light of a lighthouse lantern.

PEOPLE SHOULD GUARD AGAINST APPENDICITIS
La Crosse people who have stomach and bowel trouble should guard against appendicitis by taking simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as compounded in Adler-I-ka, the German remedy which became famous by curing appendicitis. JUST ONE DOSE relieves sour stomach, gas on the stomach and constipation INSTANTLY because this simple mixture draws out such a surprising amount of old foul matter from the body. Hoeschler Bros.

100 Seniors "Whoop 'er Up" at Banquet Which Starts Membership Fight

Standing in inter-city Y. M. C. A. members campaign:
La Crosse 190
Eau Claire 183
Fond du Lac 63
Racine 56

Y. M. C. A.
Y. M. C. A.
Lick, Lick, Lick,
When we write 'em
Make 'em stick.
Do we write 'em,
Well, I guess,
Y. M. C. A.
Y. M. C. A.
Yes, Yes, Yes.

This is the yell that has been originated for the senior department of the "Y" during the Wisconsin inter-city Y. M. C. A. members contest. Nearly one hundred throaty young men joined with Secretary A. C. Gran and L. J. Killian, head of the campaign in the senior department, in the yell at the supper in the association building last night which was the start of the campaign.

The cities in competition for memberships besides La Crosse are Wausau, Superior, Racine, Fond du Lac and Sheboygan.

Want 750 Members
Seven hundred fifty members, counting the ones who have not already renewed their old memberships, are wanted.

Four committees were appointed at the supper last night to marshal everyone attending. They are:

Committee No. 1—Chairman A. E. Barney, H. T. Taylor and W. S. Seulin.

Committee No. 2—Chairman Lorton Gouldin, George Simmerling and W. C. Greenwalt.

Committee No. 3—Chairman T. H. Ubbelohde, E. Holmes and H. Spence.

Committee No. 4—C. R. Pieper, C. C. Baker and O. J. Swennes.

In the opening address Secretary Gran made a plea to the members to first renew their old memberships. He said there were some losses in the senior department, due to students leaving the city, and that one hundred new members would be needed to win in the race.

Strong Spirit
A strong spirit of enterprise pervaded the room. Chairman Killian spoke next, followed by short addresses by each of the chairmen of the committees. Following the supper and address each of the chairmen took a corps of young men into separate rooms, drilling them in the different tactics they were to follow in the campaign.

TO VOTE SATURDAY ON CURRENCY BILL
Members of the local board of trade will have a chance to vote Saturday on the referendum on the Glass currency bill which is being conducted by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The "polls" will be open from 9 in the morning until 3 in the afternoon. The ballot box will be placed at Fourth and Main streets. A committee of the board of trade will canvass the vote immediately after the ballot box is closed.

The board of trade was unable, for lack of time, to arrange excursions to Rushford and Caledonia this week. The commercial clubs of the two cities sent invitations to La Crosse to attend their fair this week. It is probable that a number of merchants will go to the Minnesota towns independently.

Nothing Complimentary.
At a political meeting the chief speaker was a budding orator who loved to bask in publicity. Said the chairman, grasping the speaker by the arm on the conclusion of his long address: "Your speech was like a glass of good champagne"—here the chairman smiled pleasantly—"lots of froth and very dry."

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.--Wheat moved in an erratic manner today. Starting firm with the cable, there was a decline based on a continuance of the heavy northwestern receipts and the tendency of leading houses to sell on the early advance. Later buying on the dip caused a recovery and at the end of the forenoon session each month showed a gain of 3/4c over last night's closing prices.

Corn was easier after a fairly steady opening, but larger shipping sales and light offerings encouraged the bulls and toward noon the market recovered the early loss and advanced 3/4c for each month.

Oats had a firm undertone and started with an advance for December futures. Toward noon the market developed a slightly easier tone, when selling began on the advance. Provisions started easier on a large run of hogs at the yards, but leaders

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.--Trading was light at the opening of the stock market and prices were under Wednesday's close.

11 a. m.--The volume of trading was professional. Price changes were small but the undertone was fairly good. After opening unchanged at 128 3/4, A. T. & T. dropped to 127 1/2 on reports of impending public ownership of telephone and telegraph companies.

Noon.--The market was dull. Prices were firmly held without advancing.

2 p. m.--For a short time in the early afternoon the market showed some spirit and prices advanced briskly on moderate volume of buying, but stock were supplied to check the rise and trading then relapsed into utter dullness.

The stock market closed strong.

SENATORS DEFEAT ATHLETICS AGAIN

Clean Up Series in Pitchers' Battle Between Two New Recruits

Washington, 1; Philadelphia, 0. WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The Senators cleaned up the series with the Athletics by taking yesterday's game 1 to 0. The contest was a pitchers' duel between Bentley, a youthful southpaw, and Bohn, one of Connie Mack's recruits. Each twirler allowed but three hits. The Senators put over the winning run in the eighth when Acosta scored from third on Bohn's wild pitch. Score: R H E Philadelphia . 00000000—0 3 1 Washington . 00000001—1 3 1 Batteries: Bohn and McEvoy; Bentley, Gallia and Ainsmith.

Cleveland, 8; Detroit, 1. DETROIT, Oct. 2.—Cleveland easily trounced the Tigers yesterday, winning 8 to 1. Timely hitting on the part of the Naps resulted in the locals' defeat. Gregg, for the visitors, was in great form, allowing only four hits, while Comstock was hammered for ten safeties in three and House two in one inning. Score: R H E Cleveland . 100030022—8 12 4 Detroit . 000000000—1 4 2 Batteries: Gregg and O'Neill; House, Comstock and Gibson.

GRIDIRON GOSSIP

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Coach Alonzo Stagg today professed to be much worried over the fact that with the Indiana game but three days away, the Freshmen squad held the Maroon varsity to a 7 to 7 tie yesterday. The first year men used Indian tactics.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 2.—Yale's varsity is planning to plow through another soggy field today in an effort to break yesterday's record of four touchdowns scored against the scrub team.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 2.—Harvard's share of football misfortune has begun. When the varsity lined up for practice today Gardner, the most promising end this season, was out for good because of pain from an old injury and it is doubtful whether Brickley who was kicked in the head yesterday, would show up.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—The Quakers were shaking themselves together today in an effort to overcome the score of little flaws developed yesterday when they defeated Franklin and Marshall 13 to 6.

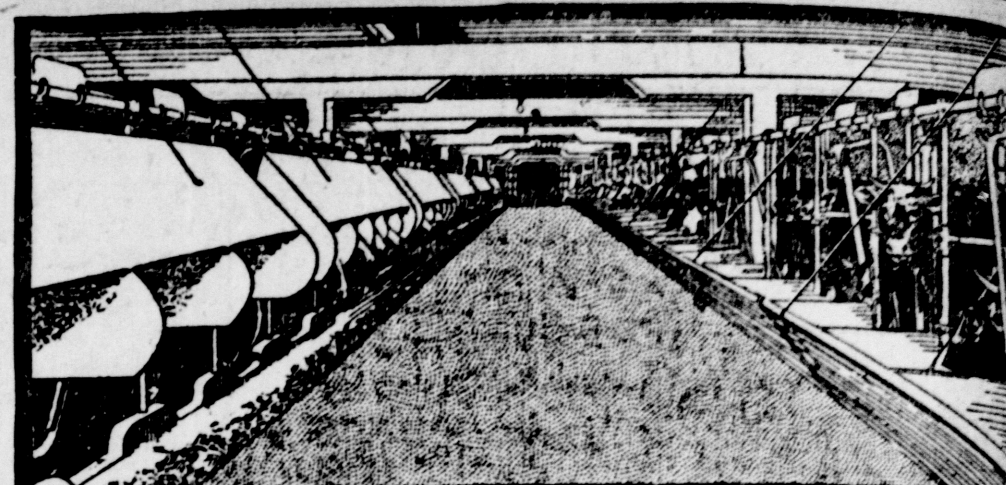

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 2.—The Tigers today got their first drill in secret signals and no one was allowed on the field within hearing distance of the players.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 2.—"We'll hang a crepe on Chicago's new stadium Saturday," said Coach Sheldon of Indiana university today. The Hoosiers were never more confident of defeating the Maroons at football.

MAY STOP FOOTBALL

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 2.—Public school authorities have not decided whether football will be put under the ban in the Minneapolis schools for the rest of the season because of the death yesterday of Allen Weidmann, whose back was broken in a scrimmage at Central High school a week ago. A conference of school athletic authorities was to be held today.

The conversation frequently lags, and from certain scraps of it, it is often entitled to an extended vacation.

PLAN LADIES' DAY AT WINONA GAME

First Event of Kind in Local Football History to Be Tried Out Week from Saturday

Bright red tags, distributed to the girls at the high school yesterday mark a new departure in athletics which is to be tried out a week from Saturday. All the feminine contingent are to be guests of the Boys' Athletic association at the Winona game, the first ladies' day in the history of local football.

Preparations are under way for a big display of enthusiasm and school spirit at the game with Winona. Indicative of the good relations between the high school and the normal school, the normal school band has promised to be present at the game, and supply musical inspiration for the rosters.

That the game will be a close and warmly contested one is conceded. The local team is confident of success, as all of the men are fit. The Tomah game last Saturday showed up a number of weak spots in the squad, and Coach Horn has been busy bolstering up the holes.

BELOIT GIRL IN BAFFLING SLEEP

BELOIT, Wis., Oct. 2.—Miss Edna Sparks, a young woman clerk in a coal office, has fallen into a sleep from which she can not be awakened. She was found seemingly unconscious at her desk on Tuesday, Sept. 23. During the following night she awakened and appeared to be without any trouble whatever. On Sunday she sank into a slumber and there is no change in her condition. Her case mystifies the physicians.

ALLEN LEADS DE ORO

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Odds on the De Oro-Allyn pocket billiard match shifted somewhat today as a result of Allen on the showing in the first block last night. The Kansas City youngster did not let the fact that he was facing a champion bother him and led at the finish of the first night's play by a score of 200 to 148. Odds of 8 to 5 were offered yesterday that Allen would not take the first block, but today even money on the match was being put up.

POLO GROUNDS ARE FINE---FOR DUCKS

Triple Bill Scheduled Today May Have to Be Pulled Off in Boats

BY HAL SHERIDAN
NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Yo, Ho, Ho, and four million gallons of water! With two full games and a warmed over portion of another scheduled between the Giants and Phillies at the Polo grounds for this afternoon the water may give a general idea of the deep sea going aspect of conditions as they are here today.

There is an ingrown desire lurking in the breasts of all of the hundreds of early arrivals for the world's series to see the Giants in action once or twice before the bell rings for the big blow off. It rained enough yesterday to lead anyone to believe that the limit had been reached, but showers were still being spilled during the early hours today. If the rain quits and the Polo grounds dry out the Giants will be seen in action today. Otherwise the triple bill scheduled may be put off until tomorrow.

Watching The Scoreboard

BY HAL SHERIDAN
The Yankees seem doomed to final finish in last place. One thing or another keeps bobbing up to hold them below the Browns, the limit being reached yesterday when the cellar was flooded and they could not even swim out.

Prospects are not too bright today. The Yanks open with Philadelphia and Mack is going to practice some world's series combinations on them.

ton but the game served to bring out two recruit pitchers who may cut up some next year.
Bohn, Mack's recruit, allowed but one hit up to the eighth inning. Two safeties and a wild pitch then let in one run which was enough for Washington to win.
Griffith showed a nineteen year old left hander who let the Athletics down with three hits.
Ty Cobb saved Detroit from a shut-out at the hands of the Cleveland Naps by beating out a bounder to the pitcher's box, stealing second and third, and scoring on an error.
Gregg held the Tigers to four hits. Latest reports from the camps indicate that the world's series ballplayers are still intent on authoring, which means a lot of work for the reporters who will write their stuff.

J. B. HAGGIN III
LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 2.—James B. Haggin, millionaire owner of many famous race horses, seriously ill with pneumonia at his Green Hills mansion, was reported improved today. Despite his advanced age—90 years—physicians have hopes of his recovery.
BET EVEN ON TRACERY
NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—When the horses went to post in the Jockey club stakes at Newmarket, Eng., today, Tracery, August Belmont's entry, carried a fortune in American money.

SLIPS AWAY TO MARRY PITCHER

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—By quietly slipping away from Indianapolis and parental objection, Miss Charlotte Benz, cousin of Pitcher Joe Benz of the Chicago White Sox, arrived in Chicago today and on Saturday will become the bride of "Red" Russell, prize recruit twirler of the Sox. Miss Benz was a stenographer in the Indianapolis Association of Commerce when she met the young Texan on a visit to her brother here. Her mother is said to have strenuously opposed the match.

New jokes, however, are not so rare as is indicated by the vaudeville artists.
